SPURRING ECONOMIC GROWTH

GreyStone Power is proud to support economic development in the communities we serve. We not only focus on retaining existing jobs, but also help bring in lucrative opportunities to the area.

We have several new large businesses that have been announced in our service area. These commercial and industrial business accounts increase power sales, and because GreyStone is a not-for-profit cooperative, savings are passed along to our members. This helps keep residential rates low.

One commercial development will be Great Point Studios, an entertainment complex with anchor tenant Lionsgate Studios Atlanta. Sitting on 40 acres, the 500,000 square-foot complex will boast 12 sound stages, offices and support space and is expected to provide 3,000 jobs. It will offer a full set of production services such as grip and electric, equipment, restaurants and more. Set to open in late 2023, it will be located in Douglas County.

Other recent commercial clients and developments include an elections facility in Fulton County, the Douglas County Legacy Arena and a Sam's Club distribution center.

Along with providing electricity to commercial members, GreyStone supports the economy through our employees' volunteer efforts. GreyStone President/CEO Gary Miller is a member of the Development Authority of Douglas County Board of Directors. GreyStone Vice Presidents Nadia Faucette and James Wright both serve on the boards of the chambers of commerce in Douglas and Paulding counties, respectively.

Supporting economic development is just another way GreyStone is making life better!
